---

University Hall, Room 018

(909) 537-5815 Department of Communication & Media website (<http://communication.csusb.edu>)

Defined as "the creation, transmission and evaluation of messages," communication is a multifaceted discipline combining both academic and professional interests.

Through courses in communication, students learn to describe, interpret and evaluate the communication processes as they occur within and among individuals, groups, organizations and societies. Students explore problems in diverse media (platform, conference, print, radio, television, film, digital media), settings (family, industrial, professional, governmental) and contexts (racial, cultural, international).

The educational objectives established for the degree program in communication are the following terminal competencies: understand relationships between symbols and culture, discover information from its sources, describe characteristics of potential audiences, translate information into an audience's conceptual framework, transmit information/messages clearly in media appropriate to the audience, evaluate messages and their effects on audiences and appreciate the ethics of communication.

By the mid-1980s more than half of the country's gross national product was spent on information products and services. Communication is the means by which information is shared. The growth of communication studies reflects, in part, a growing technology permitting spoken language to move from the forum of Greece to the surface of the moon and around the planet in mere moments.

Communication majors enter careers in business and industry, government and social services, education, media and the professions in positions of public relations, marketing, teaching, sales, media production, writing, personnel, on-air media, advertising and training. Men and women across the ages have testified how the study of communication aided their personal and professional lives, whether they be persuaders, conciliators, diplomats, teachers and scholars, or researchers.

In today's world of changing and integrated communications technology, the department's curriculum reflects the belief that communication should be studied as a single discipline integrated into the liberal arts. Practica and internships support but do not substitute for a sound theoretical base. Internships are available on and off campus in the full range of communication professions.

Departmental Honors

Students majoring in communication are eligible to receive honors in communication at graduation if the following conditions are met:

1. At least one-half of the course work required by the major is completed at this university;
2. At least a 3.5 grade point average in the major;
3. An overall grade point average of 3.5 or better;
4. An independent study course that culminates in a research presentation to the department;

5. Recommendation for departmental honors by the Communication Studies faculty.

Students interested in this recognition must file a formal application with the department and enroll in an Independent Study at least one semester prior to graduation.

Courses

COMM 1000. Critical Media Literacies: News, Entertainment, and Participatory Culture. Units: 3

Critical Media Literacies (CML) are crucial understandings, judgments, and skills for navigating our increasingly mediated social worlds. The course explores the consumption and creation of news, entertainment, and participatory culture, and their application to academic, professional, civic, and community life. Students also consider how different disciplines study media and media use in the context of a foundation seminar. Satisfies GE category E.

COMM 1006. Oral Communication. Units: 3

Introduction to effective speech communication with emphasis on informative and persuasive public speaking and presentation skills. Formerly offered as COMM 120. Satisfies GE category A1.

COMM 1007. Critical Thinking Through Argumentation. Units: 3

Principles of oral argumentation and forensics: evidence, methods of logical analysis, reasoned discourse demonstrated through argumentative speeches and debates. Satisfies GE Category A3. Formerly offered as COMM 180.

COMM 1020. Looking at Movies. Units: 3

Students will use a formalist analytical framework to study film clips and entire movies to understand how the filmmakers use cinematic formal subsystems such as narrative structure, editing, and cinematography to create meaning. Emphasis is on films with diverse protagonists not typically found in mainstream Hollywood movies. Satisfies GE Category C1; GE DI designation, and World Cultures and Diversity Pathway. Formerly offered as HUM 180.

COMM 2101. Introduction to Communication Studies. Units: 3

An overview of how people communicate in various social contexts, and how those processes have been theorized and studied. Students also learn about the nature of work in communication careers, as well as pathways for pursuing those careers. Formerly COMM 200.

COMM 2201. Intercultural Communication. Units: 3

Description and analysis of cultural and gender factors in communication such as perception, value systems, language codes, and nonverbal communication. Overcoming the communication problems that can result when members of different cultures communicate. Satisfies GE designation DI only. Formerly COMM 304.

COMM 2231. Small Group Communication. Units: 3

Theories of communication applied to small group situations emphasizing decision-making processes. Formerly offered as COMM 221.

COMM 2251. Fundamentals of Interpersonal Communication. Units: 3

Demonstration and practice of communicative techniques for establishing and cultivating interpersonal relationships including: building and maintaining communications climates, listening, perception, self-disclosure, and verbal and non-verbal communication. Formerly COMM 225.

COMM 2291. Practicum in Relational and Organizational Communication. Units: 2

An applied introduction to relational and organizational communication in a particular area of communication practice. May be taken for up to 4 units as topics change. No more than 6 Experiential Learning units may be applied toward the BA in Communication; however, students may apply additional Experiential Learning units toward general graduation requirements. Graded credit/no credit. Formerly COMM 243E.

COMM 2292. Practicum in Mentoring. Units: 2

Quarter Prerequisite: COMM 225, COMM 331 or COMM 403 or equivalent or permission of instructor
An applied introduction to mentoring. May be taken for up to 4 units of credit. No more than 6 Experiential Learning units may be applied toward the BA in Communication; however, students may apply additional Experiential Learning units toward general graduation requirements. Graded credit/no credit. Consent of instructor required to register. Formerly COMM 444D.

COMM 2293. Practicum in Intercollegiate Forensics: Coyote Debate. Units: 2

An applied introduction to debate strategy and skills for intercollegiate forensics competition. Students prepare for and compete in individual and team debate events as part of CSUSB's Coyote Debate Team. Additional hours of supervised practice and performance required. May be taken for up to 4 units of credit. No more than 6 Experiential Learning units may be applied toward the BA in Communication; however, students may apply additional Experiential Learning units toward general graduation requirements. Graded credit/no credit. Formerly COMM 382.

COMM 2301. Newswriting and Reporting. Units: 3

An introduction to basic news writing and reporting practices. Students gain experience gathering information through journalistic research and interviewing, and they write event-based and enterprise stories following inverted pyramid structure and Associated Press style. Students also get acquainted with investigative reporting, journalistic visual production, and multimedia storytelling elements.

COMM 2351. Television Studio Production. Units: 4

Introduction to television studio production and multicamera control-room directing. Introduces applied media aesthetics and the roles of above-the-line and below-the-line personnel. Three hours lecture and two hours activity laboratory per week. Materials fee required. Formerly COMM 245.

COMM 2391. Practicum in Multimedia Journalism: Coyote Chronicle. Units: 2

An applied introduction to news writing, reporting, editing, and production resulting in regular publication of the Coyote Chronicle (CSUSB's student newspaper) and its associated multimedia platforms. May be taken for up to 4 units of credit.
